Needles of rain stung my exposed face like when my brother used to twirl a t-towel into a rat's tail and flick me with it on the arse, but this time it was on the cheeks, but it hurt the same amount (an odd memory to conjure up at that moment in time)! Each step forward was followed by two steps sideways, which was a result of the Force 10 ...

It is expected that all clubs will take reasonable steps to manage the risk of COVID-19 within club huts and at their events by following BMC and government guidance. We strongly recommend that risk assessments are carried out and documented by clubs in order to evidence the steps that have been taken, for the protection of the club in the event that a claim is made."

Covid-19 and reopening huts - British Mountaineering Council

The coronavirus COVID-19 pandemic is having a massive impact across the globe. Unfortunately the mountain biking world isn't immune. While the UK is no longer in full lockdown and most trails are now open, there's still a risk of infection, local restrictions are being put in place and many events have been cancelled.
