2016-11 Fifteen Poets of the Aztec World. Miguel Leon-Portilla (Author). 1992. 307 Pages. The second book recommended by my guide in Nahua thought. A difficult book. The poetry is lovely but I really wonder if the author (who translated the text from Nahua) is reading too much into the meaning of the original text.

Because of that we can conclude it was a popular poem. In one version it has three verses, four in another, and ten in another. It is a call-and-response poem, a common form in Aztec flowersongs. Interspersed between some of the stanzas, are verses in which another singer or chorus answers the poet.
